R&M is low for a 20-key hotel; buyer should diligence whether this is a true run-rate or a quiet period after the 2024 renovation.

What this summary is not

This is a 1–2 page extract of the owner P&L, not the workbook. The full Excel file is the document to underwrite from. It is not a quality of earnings report, not audited, and not adjusted to a standardized hotel chart of accounts. Owner’s salary / owner benefit beyond the “Management, Cleaning” line is not broken out here.

Occupancy mix (from the P&L, not a CO legal opinion)

T12 nightly hotel is $122,678 (77.2%); monthly leases $32,750 (20.6%); other rental not mapped to those two lines $3,429 (2.2%). A City of Dilley Commercial Certificate of Occupancy listing business type “Hotel” (July 9, 2024, Permit 24-07-09) is in the packet. The P&L documents that monthly leases are currently in operation.

YoY context. Prior T12 NOI of $40,809 covers September 2024 through August 2025, which includes lease-up after the 2024 reopening. +69% YoY is the change in that NOI versus the current T12. It is not a run-rate that can be extrapolated forward, and it is not a representation of future performance.
